AUTHOR Sheetal Sheth

Dear Reader,

Sheetal Sheth—actress, activist, and author of Always Anjali—returns with her second book in the Anjali series.

Anjali loves playing the tabla. She loves feeling the drum beneath her fingers and getting lost in the music. She doesn't care that some people say it's an instrument for boys. But she does care when her skills make others treat her differently.

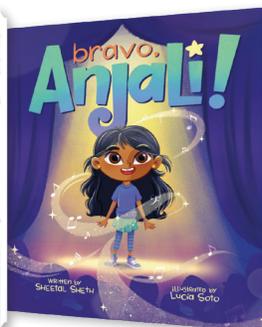

This inspiring picture book empowers us to be proud of what we're good at and to not allow anyone to shame us for doing what we love.

Tap into these fun activities and remember to never dim your light.

Color to the Beat of Your Own Drum

Anjali loves playing the tabla! Tabla are a pair of hand drums from South Asia. The two drums are a slightly different size and shape from each other. Color in the tabla. Then glue on yarn and beads or add some glitter to make it your own!

Questions from Anjali:
Anjali is the only girl in her tabla class. Have you ever been the only one somewhere? What was it like?
